First, I hope everyone has a wonderful Christmas Season and has great plans for the New Year and that includes painting. Even though it is winter, make plans to go outdoors and paint. Do paint-outs on pretty sunshine filled days. Find friends to go out and paint with you. Start a new sketchbook. You will have challenging winter landscapes, interesting lighting be it sunny or cloudy. Paint subjects you don't usually paint. Challenge yourself! You may be surprised at the new subjects you discover and love. Plus, you will get immune building vitamin D from the sun to protect you.

Although it looks as though this coming year will continue to be troublesome, painting can be the bright spot that keeps us grounded and our minds balanced. So plan to take advantage of each and every exhibition that will get you (and your painting) out there, bringing your art more exposure.

Happy New Year!

Louise
